"North East Asian Research" in the North East Asian Countries: A Survey of the Current Situation

> March, 2010 INOUE Osamu

Director, Institute for North East Asian Research

Preface:

This directory is published as part of the research project: Current situation and issues related to the "North East Asian Research" in the area of North East Asia: in search of unique North East Asian Research through the concept of "transregionalism", which was carried out from April 1st, 2007 to March 31st, 2009 with the support of the 2007 Foundation for North East Asian Relations.

From the end of 2007 through the following year, the principal members of this research project, which included researchers from the Institute for North East Asian Research, University of Shimane, traveled to China, Korea, Russia and Mongolia to carry out investigations concerning the various studies relating to the North East Asian region then being conducted at the universities and research institutions there. The study also examined the organizational structures of these institutions. This directory is based on the data collected during that time.

More than a year has now passed from the time of this study, and it is expected that there will be instances of outdated information in the data appearing here. Due to such causes as organizational reshuffling, some of the places studied may no longer exist, or may have been renamed. On this point, we would like to express our apologies to all those who so kindly participated in the study, and the readers of this directory, as well as our deep thanks to all those who collaborated in its creation.
